

Billingsgate

Introducing new members

Luis Tilleria

Luis Tilleria is a finance director with extensive experience and links within the London financial sector. He has owned an International Real Estate business for the past seven years. He has four masters degrees and has been elected as your new Common Councillor in the recent March elections.

A believer in bringing a difference to residents and supporting businesses post pandemic, he has readily approached the new role and committees in his inaugural year.

Nighat Qureishi

Nighat Qureishi is a senior reinsurance operations manager and graduate from UCL. Utilising her vast Global business & technical knowledge via roles at PWC, Accenture, Gen Re and Sompo International – she believes together we can build a sustainable future. Already appointed to the Bridge House Estates Board and Grants Committee of the Bridge House Estates Board, she looks forward to making an impact in both charitable and green issues. Being a representative for inclusivity and diversity, the newly elected common councillor is here for your suggestions and feedback on making the Billingsgate ward better.

Salisbury Square construction underway

Anyone walking down Fleet Street recently will have noticed the scaffolding in place that shows building work continuing on the site of the new courts building and headquarters for the City of London Police.

The Salisbury Square development will incorporate an 18-court facility including eight Crown Courts, five Magistrates Courts and five Civil Courts. It will be the first building to incorporate HM Courts & Tribunal Service 'Court of the Future' design principles.

The new City Police facility will see departments from existing COLP sites relocating along with its fleet vehicles and will be built to tackle fraud and economic crime in particular.

In addition there will also be a commercial development to the south of the site and a larger and much more usable and accessible public space with new east-west links through the site.

The development is designed to last for at least 125 years and will help to re-establish and reinvigorate this part of the Square Mile, famous as the former home of the newspaper industry. Upon completion, it is expected that it will support 2,500 jobs, of which 400 will be newly created across a range of sectors.

The development will be net carbon neutral in operation with highly durable facades and will use ground source heating and cooling systems in an all-electric strategy. It will also include public realm landscaping and a rooftop garden.

Don't lose your vote

City of London elections are your way to help shape the future of the Square Mile. Unlike elsewhere, both workers and residents can vote and you must re-confirm your registration each year. You are not kept on the register automatically. Businesses and other premises should have received the City Workplace Register, which they are legally required to complete – this can be done at www.cityoflondon.gov.uk/workplaceregister.

Voter registration forms will then be sent out from late August onwards and must be received by 16th December. If you would like to receive this by email or have any questions, please contact electoralservices@cityoflondon.gov.uk.

While the next election for all Common Councillors will not be held until 2025, elections for Aldermen and by-elections may be held at any time. If you are passionate about the City and are interested in standing for election in the future, please find out more at www.speakfortheCity.com/stand

Summer of Fun

There's a packed programme of activities for all this summer in the City.

While the Platinum Jubilee may have ended you have until the end of September to enjoy Superbloom at the Tower of London. Its moat has been flooded with millions of flowers to create a vibrant 'sea' that will continuously evolve from June to September, changing colours and patterns over the summer.

Also available until the end of September (Fridays and Saturdays at 2pm) is a City Guides Walk "A Right Royal City". During this walk you will discover the trials and tribulations, pomp and celebrations of the kings, queens, princes and princesses who have left their mark on the City of London over the centuries.

Running until December is a Jubilee exhibition at St Paul's Cathedral "St Paul's, the Monarch and the Changing World" which explores the grand ceremonial occasions held at the Cathedral to commemorate the Royal Jubilees of four British monarchs: George III, Victoria, George V and Elizabeth II.

By the time you receive this newsletter Sculpture in the City will have returned – the 11th annual outdoors exhibition that uses the urban realm as a rotating gallery space.

July sees the return of the ever-popular City Beerfest – the annual charity beer festival in Guildhall Yard that raises money for the Lord Mayor's Appeal which also offering excellent beer, good food and live music.

Also that month will be Feria de Londres and FestLatAm – international fiestas celebrating Spanish and Latin American culture, with incredible global cuisine, fun entertainment and a party atmosphere across three days.

Now on at the Museum of London is Harry Kane "I want to play football". This is an exclusive, free display celebrating one of the city's sporting heroes – the world-leading striker and England captain Harry Kane. Through his story of persistence, hard work, resilience, and sporting achievement, this free display curated in collaboration with Harry Kane will aim to inspire the next generation, encouraging visitors of all ages to be their best and never give up on their dreams. Rarely-seen personal items, family photos and iconic objects will document Harry's career so far: from his first club, to winning golden boot awards and being named England captain.

Inspired! Is still running at Guildhall Art Gallery – a new exhibition drawn from the Guildhall Art Gallery's permanent collections which examines ways in which visual artists have taken inspiration from the literary arts – poetry, plays, novels, and also music.

And finally, Open House returns September 8-21 offering the chance to explore outstanding architecture, hidden gems, and guided tours across the City of London.

Keep up to date on all these events and more by visiting www.cityoflondon.gov.uk/things-to-do and where you can also subscribe for regular updates.

As this issue was going to press, the City Corporation announced a package of measures designed to boost the vibrancy of the Square Mile, drive forward its recovery from the pandemic and increase its attractiveness to talent.

A key element of 'Destination City' will be to enhance the Square Mile's leisure offer with a £2.5 million annual investment and an exciting events programme including outdoor festivals, music, art, education, sport and wellness.

Beech Street Zero Emissions Scheme

The City Corporation recently ran an 18-month traffic experiment on Beech Street to improve air quality. The experiment restricted polluting traffic from using the Street as a "through route" whilst still allowing access for zero emission capable vehicles and for any vehicle type that was accessing a property on Beech Street.

The City Corporation will soon be consulting on whether it should reinstate the zero emission restrictions as a permanent measure. It will also be capturing views on the Barbican and Golden Lane area as part of a healthy street-wide approach to improving air quality, local streets and public spaces. This is early engagement to help us develop a plan for reducing through traffic in the area by encouraging the use of cleaner vehicles and there will be further consultation in the future as plans for individual projects are developed.

The consultation will be launching shortly. To take part, review historical data or attend an informational meeting about these initiatives visit www.cityoflondon.gov.uk/beecheestreet.

Pedestrian Priority Streets

The City Corporation is working to enhance the comfort and safety of people walking in the Square Mile. To make pavements wider, provide more space for people walking and reduce crowding we need to restrict access for motorised traffic on some streets.

In the Summer of 2020, we temporarily provided more space for people walking to improve social distancing. We are now keeping some of these changes in place as traffic experiments. This will enable us to test their effectiveness and gather feedback.

If you would like to find out more about the Pedestrian Priority Streets, take part in the consultation or sign up for updates, please visit www.cityoflondon.gov.uk/services/streets/pedestrian-priority-programme

COMMUNICATING WITH THOSE WHO LIVE AND WORK IN THE CITY OF LONDON

SMEs have a big role to play in the climate crisis.

Start your net zero journey with climate for SMEs: 4 steps to action by Heart of the City.

Free net zero support for SMEs

What are your plans for becoming a net zero business?

Net zero can feel overwhelming for small and medium sized businesses (SMEs). Heart of the City knows that from its 21 years of working with SMEs. But they also know that SMEs can do great things and have a real impact!

So they've created a free course: climate for SMEs: 4 steps to action. The course will get you ready to be net zero in four modules, with workshops and a toolkit by sustainability experts teaching you everything you need to know.

You'll finish the course with a net zero action plan and you'll make a commitment to achieve net zero by 2040. The course launches in January 2022 and you can apply now.

Becoming net zero is a necessity now. Businesses are increasingly reviewing their supply chains, so SMEs will lose out if they can't show net zero plans. So, keep doing the best business and sign up to this course.
